On Guard: A novel. By Annie Thomas. New York: Harper & Brothers. 1865. The clever authoress of " Dennis Donne' and "Theo. Leigh" has just given her crowd of admirers a still more clever work of fiction. It possesses a charming style, and great interest of character and plot. It will be eagerly sought for. For sale by Cobb, Andrews & Co.

LOOKING AROUND. By A. S. Roe. New York; This successful novel-writer seeks in this volume to tell a story illustrative of the results of patient, sincere, true-hearted and bonest living, or their opposites, in the common, every-day life of every man and woman. There is nothing foreign, either in the matter or the treatment, and the book, for this reason, comes recommended as a personal-friend, Cobb, Andrews & Co. have it:

WYLDEE'S HAND, A Novel. By Sheridan LeFand. New York: Carleton. 1865. Those who relish an old-fashioned, home ly novel, with abundance of incident and an exciting plot, will find what they want in this story, written by the author of "Uncle Bilss." It has been widely read and heartily praised by English readers and critics. For sale by Gobb, Andrews and Co.

BART ROOMPORT FARMERS' CLUB.-The citizens of East Rockport, with a view to the matters of rural life, called a meeting at Smith's School House, on Friday evening last. In consequence of the glorious show er of rain that fell just at that time, the meeting was not as numerously attended ss it probably would otherwise have been, Doctor Hoffman was called to preside, and W. B. Smith elected Secretary. On calling the meeting to order, the Chairman remarked that as no money was requisite to join this Club, as its objects were the free interchange of views respecting the modes of cultivating the various plants etc., into paintable drinks, the manufacof varieties, etc., he hoped every man, woman and child of the township would come forward and freely give of their knowledge, whether they had been successfal or otherwise. It is not only our successes that we need to have recited, but as the mind of man is progress.ve, each one thinks he can improve on the other's works, and unless our errors and failures are told, too often others fall into like pits.
